NOTES FROM THE DEAN

Dear Friends,

It is Holy Saturday as I write this message, and I have a thousand thoughts and worries going through my head about services tonight and tomorrow. I have to remind myself constantly to slow down and just breathe. One thing at a time, slow down, however one thinks of it, self-relaxation is important in our lives as church musicians, and it's important to be able to pass along a sense of calm to our choir members. I'm looking forward to our May 14 program (in person...yay!) where we will learn more techniques to use to care for ourselves and others.

A dear friend just posted this beautiful poem by Sylvia Sands on Facebook. While it won't be timely when this newsletter reaches you, I thought you might tuck it away for next year.

Creation takes him to her heart and wraps rock-green darkness
around his tortured limbs.

The hidden walls
sweat with anticipation,
while little animals
that live beneath the earth
wait.

Animals had watched
his lonely cattle-shed birth.
Now they keep vigil at his wake,
knowing,
with the rocks and the ferns,
with underground streams,
with lichens and tree roots,
knowing,
those (dumb?) animals,
more than Peter, James, and John,

knowing,
waiting,
these little listening animals,
for the first tremors
heralding the earthquake
of his resurrection...

Easter Peace to all,
Nancy Granert, Dean

UPCOMING CHAPTER EVENTS

May 14: Caring for our bodies.

On Saturday, May 14th, at 3 pm, we are having our first in-person event in more than two years!

We will be welcoming Amy Greer and Darci Balkcom, two Albuquerque musicians who also practice the arts of practice, movement, and body positioning. As we come out of the pandemic, many of us have found our bodies aren't as thrilled with sitting on the bench or in front of a choir, no matter how much our hearts and minds wish to do so.

Amy and Darci will help us work through some of our physical challenges and bring our musical bodies and hearts back into alignment. We will meet at St John's Methodist Church, 2626 Arizona NE, Albuquerque, NM, 87110, 3:00pm - 5:30 pm on May 14th. Look for a flyer with more information coming in early May.

Please make this meeting a priority so that we can be together with our guests.

BOOK REVIEW

The Great Passion, James Runcie, (2022) Bloomsbury Publishing, New York. 260 pages, hardbound, $28.

My brother, John, who is not a musician, sent me a book he thought I might find interesting. He was more than right! The Great Passion is an historically based fiction, a novel, that spares no efforts to invent a tale woven around Johann Sebastian Bach. The cast of characters come to life convincingly in Leipzig, the cultural nexus of Saxony and the locus of Bach's mature career. The narrative is voiced by a boy, Stefan Silbermann, (yes, of famed organ 18th century builder family). James Runcie writes about young Silberman's studies at St. Thomas Kirche choir school and his encounters with classmates, schoolmasters, clergy, court musicians, and, most importantly his friendship with Bach's growing family.

Runcie avoids false steps that often cause organists to wince about historical inaccuracies in musical authenticity. Runcie cites 1727 musical life with specific references to Bach cantatas, their arias, and the liturgical framework of St. Thomas Kirche. He names Bach's contemporaries, fellow musicians, singers, and librettists. Runcie is an author for once who "gets it right" about the organ and baroque musical practice. Historical details of Sebastian Bach's family, his second wife, Anna Magdalena, their growing family feverishly copying each week's manuscripts for the Sunday cantata are spot on. The novel avoids condescension or clumsy contrivances with scenes taking place with very honest, almost documentary accuracy.

When Runcie describes Bach giving the boy protagonist, Silbermann, organ or harpsichord lessons, the pedagogy is convincing. We encounter Bach's circle in the fabric of the tale, both local rivals and dear friends including G.F. Telemann and C.F. Henrici (Picander). The book fleshes out our imagination of Bach's theology, aesthetics, and humanity. The crowning moment of the novel "The Great Passion" provides us with a dramatic account of Bach's masterpiece, the St. Matthew Passion. The reader gets a seat at the first performance on Good Friday, April 11, 1727. We have followed the year-long leadup with the boy, Silbermann, as a gifted soprano who ends up singing the most beloved arias from the "The Great Passion."

James Runcie is also known as the author of the "Grantchester" series seen in the BBC Masterpiece Theatre. "The Great Passion" is equally enjoyable. Now, if only Masterpiece Theatre would bring it to television!

OUCH . . .

- Why did the tortilla chip start dancing? Because they put on the salsa.
- What kind of musical instrument do rats play? Mouse organs.
- What do you call a musical insect? A humbug.
- Why did the fish make such a good musician? He knew his scales.
- Why did the chicken join the band? Because he had the drumsticks.
